

Update on schedule changes in response to customer demand related to COVID-19

American will implement a phased suspension of additional long-haul international flights from the United States starting on March 16. This suspension will last through May 6. International capacity will be reduced by 75% over the same period last year. This change is due to decreased customer demand in light of U.S. government travel restrictions related to coronavirus (COVID-19).

Beginning March 16, most international long-haul flights will be suspended. London (LHR) service will be suspended in phases between March 16 and March 23 to ensure our team members and customers can return home.

American will continue one flight daily from Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW) to LHR, one flight daily from Miami (MIA) to LHR and three flights per week from DFW to Tokyo (NRT). We will continue short-haul international flying — including flights to Canada, Mexico, the Caribbean, Central America and certain markets in the northern rim of South America — as scheduled.

In addition to the international changes, we anticipate domestic capacity in April will be reduced by 20% compared to last year and May's domestic capacity will be reduced by 30% on a year over year basis.

Schedule changes in response to customer demand related to COVID-19

Today, we are announcing additional changes to adapt to our customers' plans, and strengthen our financial position on things within our control. Making these changes now, and continuing to adjust as needed, means American Airlines will emerge in a stronger competitive position than when we entered this period of uncertainty.

Here are some of the changes you'll see:

- Reducing international capacity for the summer peak by 10% versus the previous selling schedule, including a 55% reduction in trans-Pacific capacity.
- Reducing domestic capacity in April by 7.5% versus the current schedule.

New schedule changes include:

Asia

- Suspending service to mainland China and Hong Kong (HKG) from Los Angeles (LAX) through the summer.
- Suspending service to mainland China from Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW) through the summer.
- Suspending service to HKG from DFW through June. DFW-HKG will resume with a reduced schedule in July.
- Extending the suspension of service to Seoul, South Korea (ICN) from DFW into early May.
- Flights to Tokyo's Narita International Airport (NRT) and Haneda International Airport (HND) from LAX and DFW will be operated with smaller widebody aircraft beginning in May.

Europe

- Suspending service to Rome (FCO) from Philadelphia (PHL) effective immediately through the end of April.
- Extending the suspension of service to Milan (MXP), and suspending flights to FCO from Chicago (ORD) and Charlotte (CLT) through early summer.
- Delaying the seasonal resumption of flights to Barcelona (BCN) from CLT and to Venice (VCE) from ORD to early June. Also delaying the seasonal resumption of flights to FCO from New York (JFK) and DFW through the end of April and suspending operation of our second daily flight to FCO from DFW for the summer.
- Reducing service to Paris (CDG) and Madrid (MAD) for parts of May and June.

South America

- Flights to Montevideo, Uruguay (MVD) from Miami (MIA) will become seasonal, with service ending in May and resuming in December.
- Flights to Santiago, Chile (SCL) from DFW will be suspended through April.

Domestic network

For April, we will reduce domestic capacity by 7.5% to match demand. We will decrease frequencies on markets with robust schedule patterns and will cancel routes where customers can be easily reaccommodated. Widebody aircraft will be redeployed on key domestic routes in our network, and we will also introduce new seasonal service between ORD and Honolulu (HNL) this summer on a Boeing 787-9.

Slot waivers

These capacity reductions assume no slot waivers are in place. At airports where demand exceeds airfield and/or terminal capacity, access is governed by slots that grant airlines permission to take off and land at specific times. Given the drop-off in demand related to COVID-19, we have requested temporary relief from this usage requirement – otherwise known as requesting a slot waiver – to better align capacity with demand without the risk of losing valuable takeoff and landing slots for the future. We'll continue to review our network and make adjustments as needed if waivers are granted. Full details on the schedule adjustments can be found below. We are working closely with leadership in these impacted locations to minimize the uncertainty and disruption to our international colleagues.

Taking care of customers and each other

We will continue to take care of our customers as this situation develops further and know that this kind of volatility will pass. With the right proactive decisions, we will be well-prepared to weather anything that comes our way as we continue to take care of our customers and each other.

American extending change fee waivers for customers with travel plans through April

American is providing customers additional flexibility in light of concerns around coronavirus (COVID-19). American has extended its offer to waive change fees for customers who purchased tickets prior to March 1 for travel through April 30. The offer is available for any of American's fares and customers have until December 31 to rebook travel for future flights. Additional updates on existing travel alerts can be found on aa.com/travelalerts.

- Any ticket purchased prior to March 1 will not incur change fees prior to travel. Customers must pay any fare difference, if applicable, at time of ticketing of the new fare.
- This is available for any of American's fares for travel through April 30.
- The new ticket must be reissued on/before December 31 or 12 months from the original ticket date (whichever is earlier). Travel must also commence on/before December 31 or one year from original issue date whichever is sooner.

An update on South Korea flying

Due to the reduction in demand, American Airlines is suspending operations to and from Seoul, South Korea (ICN), and Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW), effective March 4, 2020. Flights to Seoul are scheduled to resume April 25. Our teams are contacting affected customers directly to accommodate their needs.

We will continue to evaluate our schedule and make any adjustments as necessary.

Frequently Asked Questions

What's American's current schedule to South Korea?

American flies to Seoul, South Korea (ICN), once daily from DFW on a Boeing 787-9.

How will customers know if they are impacted?

American's Reservations team will contact affected customers directly by email or telephone. Customers who booked through a travel agent will be contacted by their agency directly.

My flight was canceled, and I don't want to rebook. Can I get a refund?

Yes. If a flight is canceled and a customer chooses to not be rebooked, they may request a full refund by visiting aa.com/refunds.

What will happen with the aircraft?

We are continuing to evaluate what we do with our aircraft as the situation evolves.

American will waive change fee waiver for tickets purchased through March 1

On Sunday, we announced American will waive change fees up to 14 days prior to travel for customers who purchase tickets between March 1 and March 16. We understand that our customers may be apprehensive about purchasing future business trips or summer vacations and with this offer, our customers can make plans with confidence, knowing that they may change.

As Doug and Robert said on Friday, our business is the world. We continue to work closely with government authorities to comply with any travel restrictions and currently offer travel waivers for customers with bookings to Italy, South Korea, mainland China and Hong Kong.
